HUMMINGBIRD

NEST RANCH

Preparing For Your Tour

Before you arrive

A little preparation can help you make the most of your visit to Hummingbird Nest Ranch. Before arriving, we encourage you to consider a few details that will help guide your tour and the conversations that follow.

Your celebration

Guest count: An approximate number of guests, including any anticipated changes.

Preferred dates: A specific date, a few possibilities, or a preferred season.

Overall budget: Your anticipated investment for the celebration, including the venue and associated services.

Event format: Whether you're envisioning a ceremony and reception, a reception only, or a celebration extending across multiple days. Consider whether you'd like to host additional gatherings, such as a rehearsal dinner or welcome celebration.

Your priorities

Consider what matters most to you. Is it a particular ceremony setting, an indoor reception space, accommodations for loved ones, or the opportunity to gather for a rehearsal dinner or farewell celebration?

Think about the experience you want your guests to have, along with any specific needs or preferences that may influence your venue selection.

Identifying your priorities will help you compare the estate's different settings and determine which options best suit your vision.

Making the most of your visit

As you explore the estate, consider not only how each setting looks, but how it will accommodate the experience you envision for yourselves and your guests.

Questions worth asking:

The setting

How comfortably will this venue accommodate our anticipated guest count?

What are the ceremony and reception layout possibilities?

What alternatives are available in the event of unfavorable weather?

The details

What is included in the venue rental, and what is arranged separately?

What should we know about exclusive catering, bar, and rental partners?

What additional services or logistical considerations should we anticipate?

Beyond the day

What overnight accommodations are available for our guests?

Can we arrange a rehearsal dinner, welcome gathering, or farewell celebration?

What arrangements would be required for a multi-day celebration?

After your visit

Following your tour, your personalized proposal will outline the venue options and associated investment for your consideration. Our team will be happy to answer any remaining questions as you explore the next steps.
